Serving Christ Alone Means Personal Satisfaction

THE SCOOP

Vol. 38

Summer 2010

No. 2

In late May we had the opportunity to travel to Grand Goave, Haiti and serve there. We asked a few of our students to respond to the question, "What did you bring back from Haiti?" Here are their responses.

I'll never forget the willingness of the people in Haiti to give and share everything, even though it seemed like they had so little. One day it rained while we were working, and we were invited into a Haitian home. The lady living there let people in dirty clothes sit on her clean bed and then went back out in the rain to get buckets for the rest. She even went to the trouble to put shirts on them to make them dry and more comfortable. Things like this reminded me that I don't need a lot of "stuff" or money to help others, but I need to act on my faith by working to find ways to share the blessings I've been given.

-Emily Schepers

While in Haiti I saw God bring hope and joy to the worst situations. After meeting Haitians at church and around the community who have given their lives to Christ I started to see the hope and joy that God brings into their lives. Most of these people had lost their homes and were living in tents, but they were so happy. When you would ask them about the earthquake they would tell you all about how God protected them and how blessed they are to be alive. The trip made me really think about the fact that no matter where we are or what type of situation we are in there is always comfort and hope through God.

Staff Thoughts

As Paul concludes his letter to the Colossians, it is natural for him to turn to “family” talk. He uses terms like “dear brother”, “faithful brother” and “dear friend”. Paul considered their contributions to the church as contributions to the family and he held them in the highest regard.

Paul appreciated those who were serious servants. Tychicus carried Paul’s letter to Colossae. Paul called him a dear brother, a faithful minister and a fellow servant. Onesimus had been a runaway slave who was returning to his master in Colossae, but he had become a faithful and dear brother to Paul.

Paul appreciated those who were willing workers. Aristarchus and Justus were fellow Jews, but more importantly, they were fellow workers and fellow prisoners. Mark accompanied Paul on his first missionary journey. Paul was disappointed when Mark dropped out, but came to appreciate his hard work.

Paul appreciated those who were powerful prayers. Epaphras was an early leader in the church at Colossae. Epaphras shared the gospel with the Colossians and he continued his ministry through prayer.

Paul appreciated those who were committed companions. Luke traveled extensively with Paul, and may have been his physician, but most importantly, Luke was Paul’s dear friend.

Dear friends, you are like family to us. You are serious servants, willing workers, powerful prayers and committed companions. And we thank you.

-Mark

Over the last year we have been praying for God to bring revival on the campuses of ISU and Rose Hulman. As we have moved into summer, that urging has continued for me.

God has been faithful in this. We have seen an increased interest among our incoming freshmen for spiritual things. Various campus ministries are striving to work together with unity of purpose. Nine students last year in our ministry made public commitments to Christ through baptism. Our students are excited to grow with God and be in community with one another and be salt and light to a world that needs it so badly. God is doing things!

This is a very exciting time for us. As we got through the preparations for next year we are praying for God’s guidance and again for revival to take place here in Terre Haute. Please partner with us in that as we pray for our incoming freshmen to get involved, for our returning students to be witnesses for Christ on campus, and for students who don’t know Jesus to turn to Him.

Thank you so much for your prayers and your financial support! You encourage us and allow us to minister here at CSF.

-Adam

SCAMPS House News

It’s summertime at the SCAMPS House, but there is still a good bit of activity. Adam and Erin are leading Bible studies for guys and girls, respectively, and Mark and Adam are co-leading a Life Application Bible Study of Revelation. Other planned activities included a canoe trip and Indianapolis Indians Baseball game.

Our big event this summer is the National Student Conference which will meet in Evansville this August. This will be a great time of worship, fellowship and learning – a great way to get ready for the new school year.

Mark and Adam will lead workshops, and we have a record number of students who plan to attend.

Most of our students will have to take off work in order to attend, so CSF is committed to pay the $200 registration fee for our student leaders and half for everyone else who attends. This is a big expense, so we are looking for friends who will provide scholarships – full scholarships of $200 or half scholarships of $100. If you could send a gift by August 1, we would be most appreciative.

Preparations for the new school year are in full swing. Our student leaders and staff are looking forward to what God has in store, and we welcome your prayers. We are also in the process of contacting new students. If you know of any young people who will attend ISU, Rose-Hulman, St. Mary’s or IvyTech, please contact us at mark@isucsf.com.
